

DH asia webinar

"TEI Meets East Asian Materials: Localizing and Internationalizing a De Facto Encoding Standard"

December 4th (Wed)
2:00 pm GMT+9

Zoom Registration:
<https://bit.ly/497KScV>

Kazuhiro Okada

Associate Professor of Japanese Linguistics
Keio University, Japan

TEI has been an acclaimed encoding standard in the Humanities for decades. While considerable efforts have been made to adapt TEI for East Asian materials, significant barriers remain before serious philological encoding projects can be realized. In this talk, I will share my experiences introducing an area-specific writing convention—ruby annotations—into TEI and discuss its impact on East Asian digital philology and the TEI initiative.

bio
プロフィール

Kazuhiro Okada is an Associate Professor of Japanese linguistics at Keio University, Japan. He received his PhD from Hokkaido University in 2015. His research began at the interface between technology and writing systems, which eventually led to his interest in digital philology. He is a member of the steering committee of SIG East Asian/Japanese of the TEI Consortium.